FOR THE LOVE OF A SARDINE

DID YOU KNOW THAT CATHERINE WHITNEY COULD HANDLE TRAINED SEALS? NEITHER DID SHE UNTIL OUR CAMERAMAN TOOK HER TO H.W. WINSTON'S FARM NEAR DEL MONTE. THE SECRET IS TO HAVE PLENTY OF SARDINES IN YOUR POCKET.

THE PONY HAD TO BE NAMED "SARDINO" BEFORE "BUDDY" AND "DAY" WOULD PUT ON THIS CIRCUS ACT

MRS. WHITNEY THOUGHT THAT A TRAINED SEAL WAS A SAN FRANCISCO BASEBALL PLAYER UNTIL SHE VISITED WINSTON'S FARM LAST WEEK

IF YOU THINK YOU ARE SMART JUST TRY TO JUGGLE A BALL ON YOUR NOSE

"BEN" TELLS HOW MUCH SARDINES MEAN TO HIM

WINSTON DEMONSTRATES THAT THEY WILL POSE IN ANY POSITION IF YOU HAVE THE SARDINES

SHE HOPES THAT THE SARDINES LAST UNTIL THE CAMERA CLICKS

SPRING IS HERE

According to the almanac, Sunday was the first day of Spring. If so, the spring was surely running or something certainly sprung a leak.

According to the rain guage at the Carnegie Coastal Laboratories, rainfall for the day reached a total of 2.3 inches. That brought the total for the season up to 25.75 inches, which is only one-quarter of an inch short of the all-time record set during the entire July-to-July season of 1915.

Mrs. Marian Karr was met in San Mateo by her daughter, Mrs. Virginia Carr, who drove up to bring her home after a visit of a few days.

If you have noticed a gloom overcasting the local swain, it may be attributed to the loss by Carmel of Miss Betty Hyde who is joining her mother in New York in time for Easter.

Mrs. Herman Crossman, Mrs. Mortimer Hepderson and Mrs. Charles Fuller spent several days last week frolicing in the snow at Yosemite.

Mrs. Vera Peck Millis invited her San Antonio street neighbors to tea recently to meet Mr. and Mrs. Denny Roper, recent additions to the neighborhood, who have purchased the Graft house. Until their new residence is ready for occupancy the Ropers are installed in the Davis house on San Antonio street.

With the Amateur Photographers

IT'S FUN ANYWAY

This Amateur Page is beginning to offer some complications for the judges. However, if it didn't do just that it would lose its "kick" for the camera fiends who are contributing to it.

The $5 prize for this week is going to "Sammy" Sampson for her shot of the Merced river. The composition isn't all that could be asked for but the timing of the exposure and the detail procured makes it a winner.

Harvey Higley caught the Pebble Beach Cove at a placid moment and went beyond that to catch Point Lobos. If he had moved his camera a little forward to have eliminated the out-of-focus branches at the top he would have been the winner.

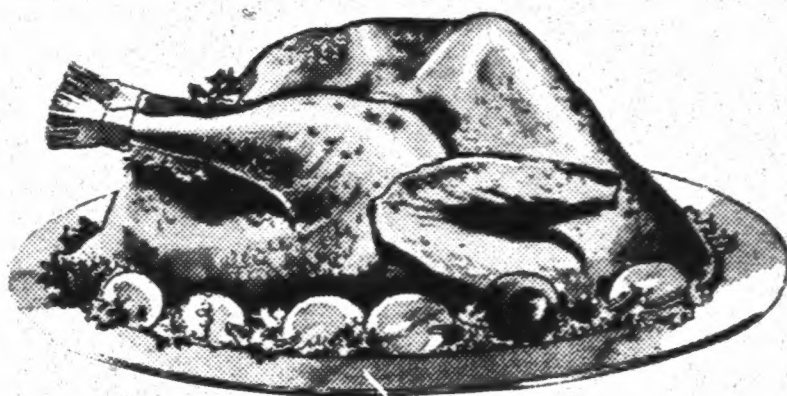

The "Portrait of a Purp", by L. K. Gentry, has a lot of merit. If you don't think so, just try to get detail when you are photographing a black dog.

Somewhere in your album you may have the print that will be the next winner. etaoinshrd the next winner. Let's have it.

Miss Happy Whyte of Kenosha, Wisconsin, who is visiting her uncle Mr. Paul Flanders of Carmel, was hostess at dinner on Sunday night at the Lodge. The dinner dance was preceded by cocktails at the Flanders home. Miss Whyte's guests were the Misses Nancy Cooke, Nadine Fox and Jean Clark of Mills College, also a niece of Mr. Flanders, and Messrs. Thomas Hooper, Carl von Saltza, Gordy Campbell and Ray Burns.

Dr. and Mrs. William de la Barre of Minneapolis were week end guests at the Country Club. The Doctor, who has traveled this world from stem to stern, expressed himself as being of the opinion that, next to the view of Lake Louise from the Chateau, the view of Carmel Bay from the balcony of Del Monte Lodge was the most beautiful sight to be seen in the world.

Mr. and Mrs. William Boeing are stopping this week at Cypress Point Club.

The Annual West Point Dinner was held again this year at the Monterey Peninsula Country Club on the evening of March 20, attended by all West Pointers in this vicinity, celebrating the 135 anniversary of the founding of the United States Military Academy. Classes from 1899 to 1936 were represented, from official records, of offenses committed by these officers when they were cadets and the excuses and explanations offered. Tales of cadet days were recounted, stories of Old West Point were told, Academy songs were sung and a program of entertainment furnished under the direction of Major John Devine. The Presidio orchestra furnished a delightful program of Army and West Point airs.

Dr. Aurelia Henry Reinhart, president of Mills College is spending the week in Carmel.

Mrs. Clara McGowan and Mrs. Rufus Kingman are leaving this week for a short visit in San Francisco.

KEEP THE CONSTITUTION AND THE COURT

By EDMUND CONVERSE
Sketches by PHIL NESBITT
MORE COURT PACKING

With his innate ability to sway the nation by radio, President Roosevelt and his magnetic voice and personality again swung into action in a "fireside chat" to one hundred and twenty odd million American citizens. The subject was the Supreme Court and a plea for the adoption of the Roosevelt proposal to rejuvenate that august body by means of adding six new members. Probably no man in history has been able to bring himself before so many people, and it is certainly questionable whether any man before President Roosevelt has been in such a position, and, in addition, have the ability to make his audience believe him to be the under dog—to be persecuted by unseen enemies—to Sir Galahad every issue. According to the President he is in the trench with the people, liberalism and the great future of America. Across a no man's land, facing Roosevelt, are the people, liberalism, Economic Royalists, Liberty Leaguers, corporation lawyers, reaction and laissez-faire.

To the American mind the underdog is always something to support, and the battle is half won by him who associates himself with that underdog. In this Supreme Court issue, however, the thinking person will realize that President Roosevelt is far from being with the lower pup. Overwhelming victory at the polls in November, full support of Labor due to a hands-off policy in the strikes, blind support for any Administration measure by that multitude of Congressmen who were elected on the Roosevelt tidal wave.

Facing the President in the issue are all who would continue the same road of democracy, be they Democrats or Republicans; farmers or merchants. The road, with its ruts and bumps and occasional detours, nevertheless, means a continuance of the American System.

During the past two weeks the papers and magazines, editorially, and the radio, noisily, have blasted a barrage of arguments and counter arguments. The issue has not changed. It is simply—shall we nullify one third of our government, the only independent third, in order to follow the path chosen for us by the President, or shall we continue to hold to that which is so important to us as a nation—our right to govern ourselves? That right, protected only by the Constitution, is now on trial. The President's proposal is supposed to make the Government more efficient, more in line with what the present generation needs, but does it? However, shall we, the People, attach more importance to so-called efficiency in government, than to the security of our liberties? Does the present generation in our land want what the present generation is getting in Europe? True, additional judges to the Supreme Court MAY not, ipso facto, result in "Heil Hitler" or a greeting predicated by "Tovarich", but a weakening of the Court is a weakening of the balance wheel of the union. Instead of the three-horse team mentioned by the President, we substitute one great big horse and two little colts.

President Roosevelt spoke of the Constitution in glowing terms in his last speech. He read the preamble and the Bill of Rights and still came to the conclusion that what our forefathers meant one hundred and forty-eight years ago was what they would mean today, and the only fly in the ointment, really, was that the Supreme Court had the duty of interpreting the Constitution. (Of arriving at the conclusion which our forefathers arrived at.) And there the mistake was made, claimed the President. This, despite the fact that little over a year ago President Roosevelt advised the House of Representatives, which at that time was considering the Guffey Coal Bill, to disregard doubts as to the constitutionality of the bill, however reasonable. Think that over!

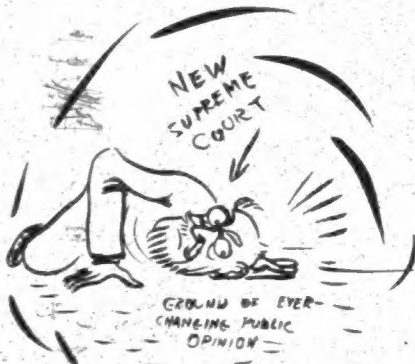

So much time has passed since the formation of our country that he have been lulled into a sense that what is, always has been,—speaking in a political sense. Attacks on liberty, free speech, free press, right of worship and condition of servitude, have been made many times in the last hundred and forty-eight years. Always these attacks have been repelled, either in the Congress or by the President, and if by neither, then by the Court. Measures of confiscation have been regarded lightly, if at all, by the people because they feel the Court will protect them. This lethargic attitude has been possible because that last bulwark of defense has been militant in the use of its powers to defend the rights of the people, the rights reserved by the people for themselves in their Constitution.

NOW,—just because in the last three years the peoples' Court has found it necessary to hold portions of acts, or whole acts, of Congress unconstitutional; to hold those acts "confiscatory" to rule that they were an infringement of the Rights of the States, mean something else? These acts were demanded by a President who had Congress under his thumb, more completely than ever before in our history, and who advised Congress, in at least one situation, to disregard Constitutionality. These laws were passed by a Congress with knowledge that perhaps they were unconstitutional, but, being under pressure, could easily let the Supreme Court knock them out, and if they proved popular thereby place the Court in an unpopular position with the "home folk".

We are asked by the President to subscribe to a new Court. A Court of fifteen which can, in some mysterious manner operate more easily to gain speedy justice than a Court of nine. The Presidential Court will have an ear to the ground for ever-changing public opinion (and a private wire to the White House) and be a Court of younger men who are not "aged or infirm." (This despite the fact that the present Court turns out decisions as fast as the Solicitor-General can prepare briefs.)

Such a court as we are asked to indorse would hold Constitutional all acts of Congress held unconstitutional by the present Court; would substitute for the interpretation of Marshall, Story, Taney, Miller, Taft and Hughes its own translation of the Constitution and its Amendments. Such a Court would do indirectly what not even Franklin D. Roosevelt could get the American people to do directly (today)—namely, change the established Constitutional form of government. Do we want that change? (In this column two weeks ago the question was asked—If we change, believing in Roosevelt, WHAT AFTER ROOSEVELT?)

of the Nation. We have a controlled Congress. Do we want a CONTROLLED COURT? Control is the essence of the question. Any other argument for the increase of the Court falls flat. Fifteen do not operate more speedily than nine, when each must do the work of the whole. Age does not deteriorate brains. (If so some Senators we know should check on their birth certificates.) The present Court is not behind in its docket. The Supreme Court is the People's Court, and the Constitution is the basic law of the land which neither the legislature nor Roosevelt may supercede. Both the Court and the Constitution must stand or fall together. One without the other is a nullity.

Destiny is in our hands today. We can continue the proven road of American greatness, secure in the belief that our Constitution insures our life, liberty and right to pursue happiness as we will. OR, we can set sail on the pleasant ocean of paternalism, experimentation, planned, living, the "more abundant life" with all the risks attendant to this trial and error method. So, it's overboard with Washington, the Constitution and the rights reserved to the people. OR it's down with the proven course which allows change by amendment, preceded by a little concentrated thinking, and not change by interpretation by use of a little mass psychology over a loud speaker.

Every individual who does not wish to see the destruction of the Supreme Court; who does not wish to surrender long-cherished rights; who does not wish to have "must" laws forced down his throat which may subject him to jail for their violation; who does not wish to see concentration of power with attendant disaster,—has a duty to perform. WRITE YOUR SENATOR AND CONGRESSMAN HOW YOU FEEL TODAY! Senator McAdoo, at this writing, favors the President's Bill to pack the Court. Senator Johnson is staunchly opposed to the President's proposal.

Miss E. M. McCree, of Victoria, B. C., who has been spending several weeks at the Sundial Court Apartments, has been the incentive for a number of bridge parties since she was first introduced to Carmel by her friend of long standing Mrs. J. L. Cockburn. Miss McCree will leave shortly for Victoria.

Miss Alberta Wright accompanied by Mrs. Jerry Fletcher, is expected in Carmel the latter part of the week to spend the Easter vacation with Mrs. Mildred Sahlstrom Wright. Miss Wright is a sophomore at the University of California.

FIREMEN HIRED

The Carmel fire department has won its battle with the city council and two paid firemen are to be placed on duty in the near future. They are to be senior and junior engineers and one of them will be on duty at the fire house at all times.

The council Wednesday evening resolved that the senior driver should receive a salary of $140 per month whereas the junior wheeler should receive but $120. Appointments will be authorized by the council upon recommendation of Fire and Water Commissioner Bernard Rowntree to whom all applications should be addressed.

Applicants will be required to satisfactorily pass a physical examination and must be between the ages 21 and 35 unless they have been members of the volunteer fire department for five years.

The council further stipulated that the fire department employees shall work for the above set salaries for three years, after which period they may receive a raise of $5 a month each year until the maximum of $185 for the senior and $165 for the junior member of the department has been reached.

Commissioner James Thoburn said that he preferred not to vote on the motion in the absence of Councilman Joseph Burge who had just been granted a six weeks' leave of absence.

WANT A JOB?

Would you like to have a nice job as a city councilman?

James H. Thoburn, commissioner of streets and playgrounds, has one that he is ready to turn over to anyone who even hints that he wants it.

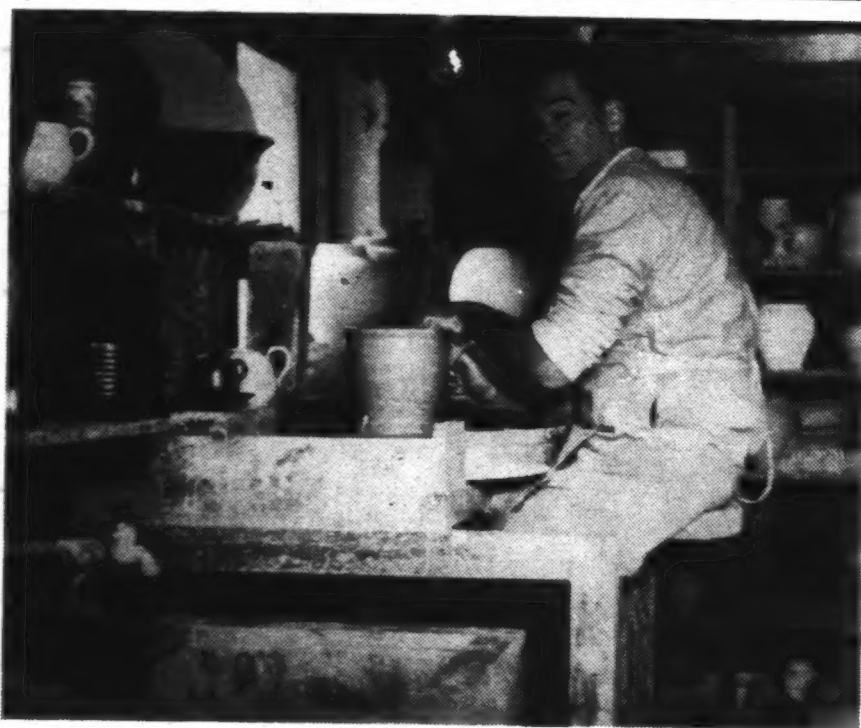

The job, Thoburn explained, is slightly used, badly battered but should run until April, 1938.

The reason Thoburn wants to dispose of the job is that recent rains have done so much to his streets that he is too busy listening to complaints to devote any time to selling real estate. (If the rains don't stop soon there won't be any real estate to sell.)

Practically every street in town was badly damaged by the heavy rains and Thoburn is kept busy explaining why repair crews cannot be in every section of the village at once.

Thoburn stated that the crews are working overtime in an attempt to repair the damage. The city councilmen, he said, have made tours of the entire community and repairs are being made in order of the seriousness of the damage.

Miss Mabel Carey, who has been visiting her sister, Mrs. William Green, of Los Altos, has returned to Carmel.

Exhibiting Pottery

Miss Helen Woolsey has been entertaining her young nephew George Dodge for the past week. Mrs. Harold Dodge, his mother, will arrive Friday to spend the week end.

Visiting Dr. and Mrs. J. H. Bradfield at their Country Club home is Mrs. John Bently of Wyoming.

Ancient Indian Recalls Early History

FILMARTE PHONE 403

 Special Matinee Wednesday

Through James William Tripp, (right) who acted as interpreter, Manuel Onesimo, ancient Carmel Valley Indian, told The Californian several interesting tales of early Indian life in this area. His father's grandmother served Father Junipero Serra as a domestic.

NEW MISSION TALE

Although his tales are not likely to cause the records at Carmel Mission to be altered or to start a gold rush, Manuel Onesimo, ancient Carmel Valley Indian, told some fascinating stories when he was interviewed in his mountain shack a few days ago.

Onesimo claims that his father's grandmother was a servant to Father Junipero Serra and that the Indians believed that the famed padre did not die at the mission but was kidnapped.

According to Onesimo, Father Serra had a habit of walking around the mission three times as he prayed each night. One night he disappeared while on his second round. His great-grandmother organized a searching party but Father Serra was never seen again.

(It is possible that the Indians did not understand the explanation that "God had taken him" and really believed that he had been kidnapped.)

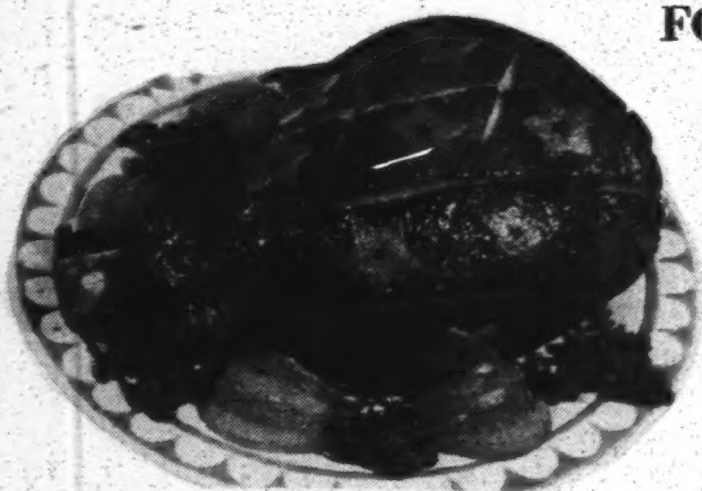

The old Indian is quite positive that there was a gold mine near the mouth of Carmel river. He claims that the sea has eaten its way inland and the mine is now in the little bay at the mouth of the river.

He claims that the mine was on a vein which extends southward and far back into the mountains. He said that he was with his father when an old Indian pointed out a mine that the Indians abandoned after the Spaniards came. It was in a wild section of the mountains and he does not believe that he could locate it now.

Many parties have been planned for Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Auchincloss, of New York, who are visiting Mr. and Mrs. Sidney Fish at their Carmel Valley ranch. Mrs. Auchincloss is the former Janet House, daughter of the late Colonel E. M. House, confidential adviser to and personal representative of President Woodrow Wilson.

Miss Bertha and Miss Ellen Kleinschmidt celebrated the visit of their brother, Herman Kleinschmidt, with a small dinner party at their home in Hatton Fields.

Colonel and Mrs. Wilson T. Davidson, of Carmel Woods, drove to Oakland last week where they spent several days visiting friends.
